U.S. Coast Guard Art Exhibit

August 5th —September 8th

Artwork by eight professional artists from the Greater New York area will be on view at Federal Hall National Memorial from August 5 through September 8, 2015.

These original paintings depict the missions of the U.S. Coast Guard, New York City's maritime guardians and the largest active duty military force in the New York City area. Along with the works of the local artists are those of 16 other artists from around the country.

The area artists, members of the U.S. Coast Guard Art Program, are James Consor of Manhattan; Susanne Corbelletta of Glen Head, N.Y.; Tom Hedderich of Westtown, N.Y.; Karen Loew of Manhattan; Mara Sfara of Farmington, Conn.; Lieut. Ken Sauerbrunn of Jersey City, N.J.; Leendert van der Pool of Brooklyn; and Marty Walsh of Middle Village, N.Y.

Their works vividly bring to life the myriad missions performed by the U.S. Coast Guard. Subjects portrayed, to name but a few, include daring search and rescue cases, national defense patrols and maritime environmental protection.

The exhibition celebrates the 225th anniversary of the service.
